Schools across the nation are shifting to more of a multifocal approach to student intervention. The use of an intervention team rather than a single specialists is creating powerful instructional improvements. This approach is benefiting students and educators. Istation's formative assessments, personalized data profiles, and teacher resources all support the instructional team and, in turn, create a more powerful intervention program for your school.

1. Formative Assessments

Stable academic improvement cannot be accomplished through temporary fixes. Real, lasting change happens when action toward improvement is continual. Benchmarking and progress monitoring make such actions easier and more possible than ever and should be a consistent part of teachers' and students' lives. Istation's automatic screening and progress monitoring takes only 30 minutes a month and provides the consistent data collection necessary to support ongoing and effective intervention. For aggressive intervention strategies, more frequent progress monitoring is available through Istation's on-demand assessments.

2. Personalized Data Profiles

When progress monitoring, it is important to ensure fidelity of implementation and to select evidence-based reporting tools with regard to cultural and linguistic responsiveness and student strengths. Istation's web-based reporting provides formative insight to guide instructional decision-making and intervention strategies.

For example, Priority Reports, accessible at the classroom level, identify students who will benefit from further intervention. These reports also provide links to appropriate teacher directed lessons and supplemental materials.

3. Teacher Resources

Response to Intervention (RTI) is part of a greater Multi-Tiered System of Supports (MTSS) structure, which involves the entire school system in the intervention process. MTSS provides support to students at all levels, from struggling to advanced learners.

MTSS ensures that technology, effective curriculum, and professional development options are provided to empower and support teachers so that they can empower and support their students. From intervention to enrichment, Istation gives students the instruction they need when they need it. Istation's adaptive curriculum identifies needs and adjusts to each student's abilities.
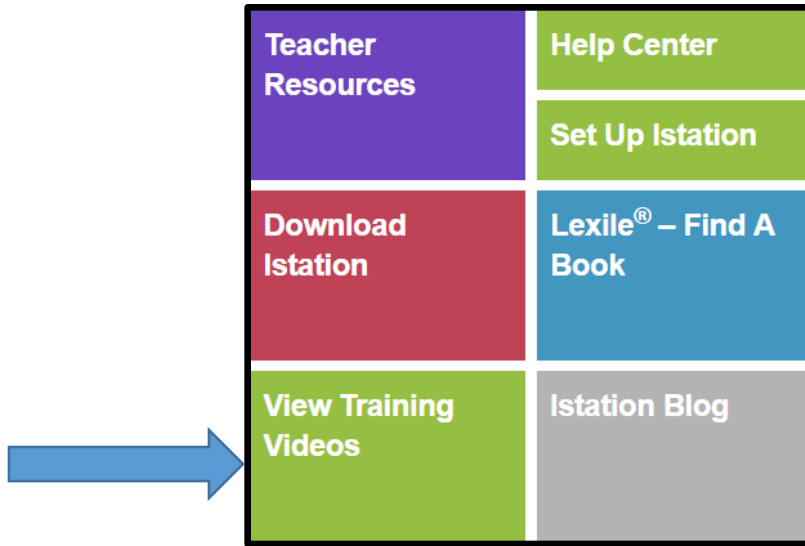

Teacher Resources provide thousands of lesson plans, automated tools, and flexible resources to help educators customize instruction and support an MTSS approach to intervention.

Having tools makes building an intervention team easier. Istation gives schools the tools they need to bridge the achievement gap through reporting and adaptive resources that differentiate instruction. Learn more about how Istation can help build your intervention team! From progress monitoring techniques to implementation strategies, Istation has written about intervention's progression toward focusing on differentiation for all students.
