

Wild Plum Center

Non-profit for Early Childhood Development in the St. Vrain Valley, serving Boulder County

Nourishing Minds.

Growing Futures.

Wild Plum Center prepares children for a lifetime of learning and self-sufficiency by providing a comprehensive, individualized approach to early learning and family wellness.

For more than 50 years, Wild Plum Center has been a leader in providing early education and development services in the Longmont community. We offer a complete continuum of services for the critical developmental window from prenatal to five years old. Wild Plum Center works to expand our services to address the growing and unmet needs of Early Childhood Education.

Wild Plum Center Services

- Curriculum-based early childhood development programs
- Education and developmental milestones
- Parent education
- Nutrition classes
- Family support and educators
- Mental health services for children and parents
- Monthly socialization classes
- Transportation to school
- Classroom meal services
- Health and dental screenings

Testimonial:

“ I never knew parents could participate in children’s education until my daughter came to Wild Plum. Wild Plum Center knows parents are educators of their children—they really involve families—really reach out to parents”
— Dulce Gonzales, Past WPC Parent

Factors to Success

- Engaging families in specific activities to enhance school readiness
- Partnering with parents to reduce barriers for school attendance (setting routines, providing transportation, counseling)
- Encouraging language rich experiences
- Teaching positive discipline
- Creating a culture of reading